

Evaluation Protocol #2

- Read the JUST THE INTRODUCTION to rTisane, making highlights + notes + connections as you go. Explain your process.
  - just made highlights normally
- Go back and reread the introduction, trying to answer the question: What is the methodology of the paper? Use the add read feature to make additional highlights + notes + connections with another color. Explain your process during this second read.
  - biggest confusion - what do i even do, not immediately clear the goal
  - needed prompting to be like highlight in a specific color or whatever
  - linking was interesting, but the layout can be confusing
- Do you think using this tool helped deepen your understanding of the text? How so?
  - think so
    - forced multiple reads
  - more incentive/encourage for multiple reads or more prompting from the UI itself
  - should be more actively helping you process things than just being a passive aid
- Did you encounter any difficulties using our interface?
  - maybe have a default color already selected
  - notes is not a multi-line input
  - lots of white space
  - drag dot-to-dot is a pain point
- Please take a screenshot of your highlights and graph to send to us.

- Rate usefulness on scale of 1-10?
  - 5
- How often might you use this/when would you use this if you're reading a paper potentially?
  - could be useful for lit reviews
- Additional features you'd like to see in a more fleshed out version?
  - categories, more so than direct linking from read to read
